ATLANTIC CITY NOTES

Thousands of Elks Capture Popular Resort.

HORSE SHOW COMES TO END

"Bloomer Bathing Maid" Succeeded by "Fluffy Ruffles"—National Jewish Chautauqua Will Open Tuesday at Royal Palace Hotel—Life Guards Hope to Establish Record.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Atlantic City, July 20.—Members of the Elks came by the thousands into Atlantic City from the Philadelphia convention, and to-day they are the guests of the local lodge, which is entertaining them with a dip in the sea, a sail over the waves, and filling them up with 60,000 clams, gathered from the choicest beds in this locality.

The horse show, which has been running through the week, came to an end to-day. The show was never more brilliant in entries. Mr. C. W. Watson, of Baltimore, who returned from England with his stable of ribbon winners, was astonished to find his pets outclassed time and again, and it compelled him to express the sentiment: "These horses are superior in many ways to those I sent my entries up against in the international show in England. They are as fine as can be gathered anywhere."

With the horse off the boards and the Elks now in hand, public interest is becoming centered in the automobile carnival, designed to be the greatest event of its kind ever held this season. Approval has been secured from the Automobile Association of America for the contests to be run under its official eye. Five of the cars which ran in the Vanderbilt Cup race are already listed for the local event.

On Tuesday the National Jewish Chautauqua is to be opened in the Royal Palace Hotel, Dr. Berkowitz, of Philadelphia, the founder, is expected to be present. Judge Sultzberger, of the Pennsylvania judiciary, has been asked to deliver an address, and Secretary Straus, of President Roosevelt's Cabinet, is also a prospective speaker.

The sun has been busy painting the cheeks of visitors, although the temperature has not been too hot, at least, as pleasant as the bathers desire it; it retains a chill that is aggravating, and Mayor Stoy is about to hold an official investigation. If it does not become warmer, the gulf stream will be turned in this direction to warm up the water. The beach itself has been thronged with bathers. The water's temperature does not stop visitors from indulging in the pleasure of bathing. It is a delight they expect, and which they seek, no matter how the mercury moves in the tube when it is submerged in the water. The city now has fifty life guards in service, and they are making a record for themselves. Not a life has been lost, and there have been few rescues. They anticipate to close the summer without a surf fatality. Several drownings had been recorded last year at this period of the season.

The bloomer-bathing maid is not very much in evidence. Many inquiries are made for her, but she persists in remaining out of sight, although "fluffy ruffles" is coming into prominence. She has been seen at the horse show, on the Boardwalk, and has likewise made her appearance at the hops. She is something of a marvel, as she fancies lingerie gowns, hats and trimmings about her dainty person. Fluffy ruffles is a creature which, once met, cannot be forgotten because of her pert appearance, she being envied by the summer girl because of the attention she is receiving.

One of the most charming summer girls is Miss Anna Kann, of Washington, who has joined friends at the Clifftown.

Mr. Charles F. Keefe, of Washington, is spending his tenth summer at the Pennhurst, and thinks there is no place like Atlantic City.

Rev. W. W. Giles, of Washington, is enjoying a short sojourn at the Boscobel, by the shore.

Attorney Charles F. Caruse joined the Washington colony at the Pennhurst.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Goldenstreich, of Washington, who are here for the Elks' convention, are located at the St. Regis.

Dr. Edward W. Peterson, of Washington, is spending part of his three months' leave of absence at the Hotel Normandie. He is accompanied by his mother.

Mr. A. P. Crenshaw, treasurer of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, is at the Hotel Monticello, with Mrs. Crenshaw, A. P. Crenshaw, Jr., Miss Annie N. Crenshaw, J. M. Crenshaw, Miss E. Crenshaw, Mr. W. M. Peterson, Mrs. R. M. Hunter, and Miss L. H. Seitz.

Miss Caroline Jackson is entertaining Miss Gladys Morrison, of Washington, at her Chelsea cottage.

Miss Olive Peterson and Mrs. Andrew Peterson, of Washington, are visiting Mrs. Randolph Peterson, who has a cottage at Longport.

Mr. Adolph Loeb has arrived in his Columbia touring car, and is registered at the Hotel Fredonia. Mr. Loeb was accompanied by Mrs. Loeb, Miss Dorothy Loeb, and Miss Bertha Loeb. Mr. Loeb and his family will make a tour of the Atlantic Coast resorts before returning to their Washington home.

Dr. C. E. Trabley and Mrs. Trabley, of Washington, gave a delightful launching party in the launch Albemarle to Ocean City and return. When the party landed at Ocean City a dainty supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Osgood, accompanied by their son and daughter, of Washington, arrived in their automobile to spend a few days at the Grand Atlantic before making a tour of New York State.

Mr. Charles S. Hopkins, general passenger agent of the Southern Railway, is enjoying a brief rest at the Windsor.
